

Mind Your Mates - bringing mental health awareness to the community

Mind Your Mates is a 45-minute 'toolbox tool' about recognising the signs of depression, anxiety and thoughts of suicide. This presentation is delivered by Lifeline skills-for-life suicide prevention trainers.

Mental illness can affect anyone at any time, but how many of us would know what to do, or what to say, if someone is distressed or in a crisis situation? Most of us have heard of or undertaken training in physical first aid, but when it comes to mental health or emotional first aid, we are not so well-trained or equipped.

Takeaways from this presentation:

Recognise the warning signs of mental health problems

Provide skills needed to speak openly about mental health

Gain knowledge about how to offer support and what services to refer someone on to if they require professional support

45 Mins
Presentation

Some people suffer a mental health problem alone rather than reach out for help. The number one thing you can do is offer your support if you suspect someone may need it.
